

Creating conversations in Croydon

Dying well takes planning

CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS 2019

The Creating Conversations in Croydon project aims to encourage local people to feel more comfortable about talking openly about death & dying.

Dying is a fact of life, impacting on all of us, but some find discussing it hard and few of us make plans.

Would you like to empower Croydon communities to have these important conversations and to offer people support in planning for the last years of life?

YES!

Can you commit to an initial four days of free training* and then join our team for ongoing volunteering in Croydon?

We would love to hear from you.

Please contact Carol Trower, Project Lead email: c.trower@stchristophers.org.uk

Our friendly team of trained volunteers give talks & presentations, organise workshops, host events and facilitate Death Cafés within the London Borough of Croydon to help break down the silence and reduce the fears around death.

 Training Dates - Tuesdays (9.30am - 4.15pm) on June 11th/18th/25th & July 2nd at St Michael's Church Hall, 7 Poplar Walk, Croydon, CR0 1UA
