

treat me right!

Treat Me Right! are currently working with Health Education England to provide training to family carers and advice organisations to ensure that everyone can work together to ensure people with learning disabilities and/or autism can get the health support they need.

Our training covers:

- Health inequality, the reasons for this and how it can be overcome
- What reasonable adjustments are and how to make them
- Learning Disability and Autism awareness training
- Mental capacity act
- How to be an effective advocate

All training is co-delivered by someone with learning disabilities and/or autism.
